

TEAM BUILDING

Build TEAMS that MAXIMIZE SUCCESS.

Understand Each Other, Achieve Together

One of the biggest hindrances to successful teamwork is effective communication. In every team, people must adapt to successfully engage with one another, solve problems, and achieve goals. In order for teams to maximize success, there must be a sense of understanding and mutual respect between individuals.

In addition to communication and respect, high functioning teams are able to consistently leverage the strengths in their group and help individuals feel comfortable in the team's culture and environment.

Building Teams at the Personality Level

Through knowledge of their own behavioral triggers and underlying motivations, individuals are able to bring their best selves to the team.

When individuals discuss behavioral insights together, they are able to appreciate, communicate, and leverage the personalities within their team; mutual understanding is key to building collaborative success.

Birkman enables teams to embrace the differences that make them unique.

A Common Language For Communication

Birkman creates a common language for communication within teams and enables individuals to understand each others' behaviors and Needs. By establishing a solid foundation, teams can increase their emotional intelligence and effectiveness.

Birkman offers both individual and group reports. Group reports compare the behaviors of up to 100 team members, allowing for comprehensive and in-depth insights.

Birkman Builds Better Teams

Birkman Team Building is not only a competitive advantage for individuals and teams, but for the organization as a whole.

Birkman provides insights into:

- Interests and motivations that drive individual and group productivity
- Differences to note and potential areas of conflict
- Methods to communicate effectively with all behavioral styles

The Birkman Method helps teams grow by embracing their unique personalities and differences.
